LEGISLATURE FACES A DELUGE OF BILLS

Two Hundred Measures Before the Two Houses for Consideration This Session.

Madison, Wis., Feb. 16.—Both houses of the legislature were deluged with bills today. It is believed now there are 1200 bills before the legislature for consideration and probably 300 more will come in through committees. This was the last day when members could introduce bills and every member it seemed returned to Madison with a pocket full. The legislative reference library has been busy since the adjournment last Thursday and has prepared nearly 100 bills in four days at the request of the members.

Nearly 150 bills came into the assembly alone and a large number were introduced in the senate. In spite of the senatorial investigation, which naturally attracts the attention of many members, many important committee hearings are scheduled for this week and the bill of grinding out legislation will start in good order this week. Thus far only two bills have been passed and signed by the governor, the first relating to Lincoln's centennial and the second legalizing some municipal bonds at West Allis. The governor's bill has been signed by the governor and will be published soon.

It is believed that when the session comes to a close and the bills have been recorded from all sources, the number considered this year will exceed in number those of two years ago. In 1901-1902 bills were received by the assembly and 645 in the senate. This was over 500 more than had been considered at any previous session of the legislature.

INHERITANCE LAWS ARE TO BE TESTED

Test of This Important Law is to Come During April Term of Supreme Court.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Madison, Wis., Feb. 16.—The Wisconsin inheritance law, which brings into the state treasury a revenue of some $100,000 annually, will be the subject of a general local attack in the state supreme court at the sitting of that tribunal early in April. The court announced this morning that the inheritance tax case and the appeal of Abbie E. Beale of Milwaukee, both involving the constitutionality of the inheritance tax statute, would be set for argument at the April assignment. The Beale case was to have been heard at the last assignment, but was put over so that it could be taken up at the same time with the inheritance tax case. The Beale case involves a tax of $3,000 and the contention is that the progressive scale of taxation, depending upon remoteness of consanguinity, legatees or heirs, is unconstitutional. The other case involves the same and the other points and arises out of the estate of the late and of the Beale case. In this case the local tax decided away his property prior to death and the estate claims that the inheritance tax law should not apply to the property so decided, but the state has successfully maintained in the lower courts that these deeds were palpable evasions of the inheritance tax law.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 16.—More than one thousand delegates, representing millions upon millions of invested capital, met today in convention in Tomlinson hall to discuss the question of a national tariff commission.

The National Association of Manufacturers brought them together to exchange ideas and to recommend informally some solution of the problem of tariff revision. During the session of three days the views of high tariff men and low tariff men, of free traders and ultra-protectionists, will be heard. In the language of the official call, the purpose of the convention is "to give immediate and adequate expression to the existing public demand for the creation of a permanent, nonpartisan, semi-judicial tariff commission which shall collect, collate and study industrial and commercial facts in this and other countries pertinent to the tariff question, for the information and use of congress and the executive."

The initial session today was given over to the work of organization and the arrangement of the program for the succeeding sessions. The spacious hall was scarcely able to accommodate the great throng of delegates that faced President J. W. Van Cleave of the National Association of Manufacturers, when he called the gathering to order.

Included in the attendance are representatives of the following organizations: The National Association of Manufacturers, National Association of Agricultural Implement and Vehicle Manufacturers, National Live Stock association, Merchant Tailors' National Protective association, American Meat Packers' association, Massachusetts State Board of Trade, American Millers' National Federation, Farmers' National Congress, National Piano Manufacturers' association, National Foot and Shoe Manufacturers' association, Carriage Builders' National association, National Association Case Goods Manufacturers, Iowa State Manufacturers' association, Wisconsin Retail Lumber Dealers' association, and the New England Shoe and Leather association.

GREAT CHAMPION OF MONISTIC DOCTRINE IS SEVENTY-FIVE

Mind is but a Manifestation of Matter and Origin of Life on This Planet Was Spontaneous, According to Haeckel.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Berlin, Feb. 16.—The German press and public united today in paying high tribute to Professor Ernst Haeckel, the celebrated philosopher and naturalist, on the occasion of his seventy-fifth anniversary of his birth. For more than forty years Professor Haeckel has occupied the chair of zoology at the University of Jena.

From this position he is now about to retire to devote the remainder of his life to his physiognomic museum.

Professor Haeckel is perhaps the best known of the living German philosophers. He is the father of the Monistic philosophy of today and his books are read by thousands in all parts of the world. He is the most prominent defender of the doctrine of abiogenesis, the theory that life generated spontaneously on this planet as opposed to the creation theory that life was created.

Like the late Prof. Huxley of England, Prof. Haeckel advocates the popularization of all science and knowledge and insists that scientific truths shall be taught in all the schools of Germany. For years he has been warring to divorce the educational life of Germany from the domination of Berlin and the University of Berlin.

THE SLEEPING SICKNESS WHICH MEANS DEATH

How many readers have heard of this terrible disease? It prevails in that far-away country—Africa—especially the Congo district. It is caused by the bite of the tsetse fly. When it bites a person, the sleeping symptoms begin and finally the sufferer sleeps until death occurs.

Contrast this with the peaceful, balmy sleep of health. Is there anything more wearing than to be awake at night, tossing about, nervous, with cold feet, hot head and mercy knows what else? Short of letting the tsetse fly bite us we would do almost anything for relief. How can we prevent it? Mr. George Hayes, of Union City, Pa., writes: "I had lost my appetite, was all run-down, could not sleep nights. I had tried everything without relief. Vinol was recommended, and to my surprise, it helped me at once; gave me a splendid appetite, and now I sleep soundly."

What Vinol did for Mr. Hayes, it will do for every run-down, nervous and overworked person who cannot sleep.

is ill, for San Antonio, Tex. Mr. Moehlepp expects to spend a few days visiting and fishing with Geo. Woodard at Elberta, Tex., returning about March 1st. Partly cloudy tonight; Wednesday rising temperature.

JUST SIMMERING
Thus far the local political situation has been just simmering. It has not really begun to boil, but when it does, look out. There promises to be an interesting campaign in prospect for the voters of Janesville as has ever been enjoyed in the city for many years—one of those old-fashioned kinds.

Thus far the democrats have but one candidate for Mayor in the field, while the republicans have two. This means a pretty tight at the primary and then a good hot contest at the election day polls. Janesville is a republican city on state and national politics, but somehow it goes democratic on municipal affairs quite regularly.

Contests in the various wards are also worth watching. If the present talk amounts to anything there is going to be lively times in the second, third and perhaps in the first. The fourth and fifth are always overclouded, so that if any contests come in these two it will be on the democratic side of the fence.

It is a bit early for the real fun to begin, but the political pot is simmering and when it begins to boil it will be a steam-wind of a hell you may rest assured.

KNOX POSITION
Evidently both Mr. Knox of Pennsylvania and President-elect Taft want to be bosom friends during the coming term and the little thing of salary does not enter into their contract at all. Judge Taft wired to congress that the loss of Knox as his cabinet premier would mean a most unfortunate circumstance in the history of his administration and congress replied by reducing Knox' salary to the old status, so that, he could go into the cabinet and save the country. This cabinet-picking job is not as easy as it seems. Uncle Sam does not pay his public servants as much as it should and consequently a man must have a private fortune in order to become a member of a President's cabinet and still keep up the appearance demanded of him. If Judge Taft wants Knox as his secretary of state congress did right in doing all in its power to clear away any legal obstacles that would have hindered the plan.

IS IN MADISON
Isaac Stephenson is in Madison today to respond to the request of the legislative investigation committee that he tell all he knows of the recent primary campaign and expenditure of money. There is one fact that Mr. Stephenson can tell and that is he was named as the choice of the people at the primary and this should have its weight with the members of the legislature, even if not particularly with this present investigation.

Deloit objects to Janesville having anything they have not and pool-pools at the Owen Thomas automobile that made the sensation of the recent auto show in Chicago. Never mind; Janesville can yet show the Line City a few cards and spades when it comes to playing the real game of life.

In a few days we will be paying all honor and tribute to the memory of George Washington and the newspapers will be full of the story of the hatchet and the cherry tree. However, there is one consolation and that is there can be no personal recollections of the Revolutionary hero.

There will be some hard times at the cement show, but they will be successful ones. The age of cement and automobiles and flying machines has come and the public watches each new invention with interest as a promise for future discoveries.

President Roosevelt brought back from Kentucky a demijohn of thirty-year-old whiskey. Though as far as can be learned the administration does not need any embalming fluid as yet.

Humor has it that Hetty Green's daughter is to wed. Hetty says she does not know anything relative to the arrangement, but maybe the daughter does and that will help some.

King Edward visited his nephew, William, in Berlin and caught a bad cold. He should have joined Taft on his trip to Panama and come back with nothing but health.

Wireless messages do not butter any bread for the underwriters when the

OTHER POLITICAL GOSSIP

Wilbur Carle Has Formally Entered the Race—Contests in Wards Are Promised.

It is really doubtful if the question of license or no-license is put up to the voters of Janesville this spring. The meeting of business and professional men interested in temperance resulted in no decisive decision as to the question and it was decided to adjourn from last evening until Tuesday next.

Neither was the endorsement of any candidate for Mayor endorsed. The question of doing so was raised, but was not taken to a vote owing to the opposition of many of the gentlemen present.

The meeting was held in the office of A. E. Matheson in the Jackson block and was attended by some twenty odd gentlemen interested in the cause of temperance. Matters relative to the civic campaign were discussed and the question of seeking signatures for a license or no-license proposition. Many of those present were opposed to placing this question before the voters, saying that the question of County Option was before the legislature and they thought best to wait for the ultimate outcome.

It was expected that Wilbur Carle candidate for Mayor agreed upon. The found that the majority of the gentlemen present were not in favor of doing so and the question went over with the other matter until Tuesday next.

The report was current this morning that Wilbur Carle would not be a candidate for Mayor on the republican ticket. Mr. Carle stated this afternoon that he was in the race to stay despite any rumors to the contrary and could not understand how they had arisen.

Aldermanic matters promise a fight in several wards. In the first Mr. Carle has not yet signified his intention of resigning to make the race for mayor. In the second Edward H. Connell, a former alderman, has come out for the democratic nomination for alderman and will doubtless have for his opponent John O'Hara, the present alderman.

In the fourth ward Alderman Robb will seek re-nomination and will be opposed by A. Knuth and Grundy on the democratic ticket.

ASKS $71,000 FOR BLIND INSTITUTE

State Board of Control's Item for Janesville School is Smallest in Proposed Budget.

The State Board of Control has asked the legislature to appropriate the large sum of $1,855,200 to meet the needs of the several charitable and penal institutions of Wisconsin during the forthcoming period of two years. Notwithstanding the fact that there are more and larger demands for money from the treasury this season than usual, there is little probability that the recommendations of the board will be cut in any considerable extent, as the state has reached the point where it must make adequate provisions for the care of its own criminals and unfortunate, or leave them to the charity of friends and neighbors.

The budget includes $215,000 for the Oshkosh asylum; $215,000 for the Mendota asylum; $150,000 for the school for the deaf at Beloit; $110,000 for the state's prison at Waupun; and $71,000 for the school for the blind, at Janesville.

The specific needs of the last-named institution, aside from running expenses and the money needed therefor, are set forth as follows:

Cement walks ..... $ 700
Isolation hospital ..... 3000
New roof, industrial building ..... 600
Repairs to porches ..... 1000
New books ..... 500
New pianos ..... 2000
Laundry machinery ..... 1000

TYPHOID GERMS WERE EVIDENTLY IMPORTED

Samples of Water From Local Wells and Cisterns Showed Bad Traces of the Dangerous "Bug."

In the report made by University of Wisconsin experts to Health Commissioner G. C. Wauke on samples of water taken from local cisterns and wells which were suspected of harboring typhoid fever germs, it is stated that in each instance the water was found to be free from this variety of microbes and all other dangerous "bugs." Milk which was lowered into the cisterns and left there over night was also found to be free from disease organisms. This latter evidence is especially convincing as milk is a substance most readily adaptable to germ culture. The university authorities had also stated that many experiments had practically demonstrated typhoid fever from sewer gas. The inference, therefore, is that the cause of this terrible malady which developed in this city owed their origin to germs which were imported from elsewhere.

INTERURBAN'S NEW FRANCHISE VALID

And It Can Condemn Right-of-way in Loop District—Is Liable for Damages on Franklin Street.

In the matter of the petition of the Rockford Interurban Co. for the condemnation of certain property owned by Floyd D. Murdoch, W. H. H. Macdonald, and others in the so-called "loop" district of the city, Judge Grimm has found for the plaintiff. He holds that the amended franchise granted to that corporation during the early winter is valid and that under it the company has the power to institute such proceedings. The supreme court, in a previous action between the same parties, instituted before the franchise was amended, held that the company only had a franchise for running a street railway and could not institute condemnation proceedings for an interurban right-of-way.

The court has also ruled that the actions of forty-two property-owners on South Franklin and South Jackson streets to recover damages from the interurban company are not out-hawed by the statute of limitations; that the company holds a valid interurban franchise; and that under it the company can be forced to institute condemnation proceedings and pay damages. The test action was brought by John Mowbray et al.

In the case of Ryan vs. Lynch the court has held that the lien of a former judgment should be impressed upon the defendant's property.

ENTERTAINED AT A NEW ENGLAND DINNER

Ladies of Bridge Whist Club and Their Husbands Were the Guests of Third Division.

Broadhead, Feb. 15.—At the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Carpenter the third division of the Bridge Whist Club entertained the club and their husbands at a six o'clock New England dinner, chief of which on the bill of fare was a small pig roasted. There were many other accessories, all forming a menu very tempting to the lazier man. The evening was spent in playing bridge whist until a late hour.

A jolly St. Valentine party was given to about forty young ladies and gentlemen friends of Misses Emma Olson and Gladys Pierce on Saturday evening in Broadhead's Annex. Games of a different character were indulged in, refreshments of ice cream and cake were served and an evening of enjoyment was passed away.

Among others who have been on the sick list the past week were Nate Brice, the children of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hamilton, Donald and Genevieve Collins, Burdette Purdy and George Eddy.

A fine supper was served and a splendid good time was had throughout the evening. Mr. Olson was presented with a purse of money by his friends.

Another surprise party took place Saturday evening, when the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ritt was entered by about thirty friends and made the "walk-in ring" throughout the evening. A sumptuous supper was served and Arthur was presented with a fine chair to remind him that he was thirty-two years of age. Those present from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. John Lechner of Orono, Mr. and Mrs. Schlicher of Evansville, Mr. and Mrs. McHenry and Mr. and Mrs. John Story, all of Evansville.

The children and their families of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Doderick planned and carried out a pleasant surprise party on Sunday. Her sixtieth birthday anniversary fell due on that date and besides being present themselves they invited some others to spend the day. A very sumptuous dinner was spread to which all did ample justice, and Mrs. Doderick was the recipient of ninety-five valentines from friends far and near. The occasion was a most pleasant one.

"Look! Look!" The sudden cry went up, and a thrill of awe ran through the crowd. The glass flung had shattered and formed the face of the penitent thief in the window design, and his outstretched arms fitted those of the figure. It was as though by some ghastly miracle the painted features had suddenly sprung into life, the haggard eyes opened in appeal.

All at once there came a shout of warning. The wall opened outward, tottered and fell.

Then it was that they saw the writhing figure, tangled in the twisted lead bars of the wrecked rose window. Shielding their faces from the unendurable heat, they reached and bore it to safety, laying it on the crisp, snowy grass and tearing off the shag and smoking ministerial robes.

Judge Conwell was one of these. In the glaring confusion he leaned over the figure. The gleam of the ruby ring on the finger caught his eye. He bent forward to look into the drawn and distorted face.

"Good God!" he said. "It's Harry Sanderson!"

Moreau dying: "That the latter had traced with his own hand the accusation which fastened the crime upon Hugh Stiles."

In his cross examination Forder sought gainfully to light the weight of the evidence. All rested, he said, upon a single scrap of paper, a fragment of handwriting in no way difficult of imitation, and this in turn upon the allegation of a thief, struck down in an act of crime, whose word in an ordinary case of fact would not be worth a farthing. No motive had been alleged

Chapter 27

As she passed Harry she bent and laid one in his hand.

For the killing of Moreau by the prisoner, but Forder had had motive enough in his accusation. It had been open knowledge that he hated Hugh Stiles, and his own character made it evident that he would not have scrupled to foster a murder upon him.

But as Forder studied the twelve grave faces in the jury box, who in the last analysis were all that counted, he shared his client's hopelessness. Judgment and experience told him that the jury were all theories in the face of that heartache and damning witness that Forder had led behind him. So the afternoon dragged through, a day for the state.

Sunset came early at that season. Dark fell, and the electric bulbs made their mimic day, but no one left the room. The outcome seemed a foregone conclusion. The juryman no longer gazed at the prisoner, and when they looked at one another it was with grim understanding. As the last witness for the state stepped down and the prosecutor rested, the judge glanced at the clock.

"There is a bare half hour," he said tentatively. "Perhaps the defense would prefer not to open testimony till tomorrow."

Forder had risen. He saw his opportunity to bring out sharply a contrasting point in the prisoner's favor, the one circumstance, considered apart, pointing toward innocence rather than guilt; to leave this for the jury to take with them, to offset by its effect the weight of the evidence that had been given.

"I will proceed, if your honor please," he said and arched a rustle of surprise and interest called Jensen to the stand.

As she went forward to the witness chair who put back the shuffling veil, and her face, pale as a bramble bloom under her red bronzed hair, made an appealing picture. A cluster of white circumstances was planned to her coat, and as she passed Harry she bent and laid one in his hand.

The slight act, not lost upon the spectators, called forth a shudder of sympathy, for it was no touch of designed effect. His impulse was as pure and unmistakable as its meaning.

Harry had started uncontrollably as she rose, for he had had no intimation of the lawyer's intention, and a flash darkened his cheek at the cool touch of the flower. But this faded to a settled pallor as under Forder's grave questioning she told in a voice as clear as a child's, yet with a woman's emotion struggling through it, the story of her degraded warning. While she spoke pulsed and shame traveled through his every vein, for, though technically she had not brought herself into the perjury purview of the law, she was laying bare the secret of her own heart, which now he would have covered at any cost.

"That man's name," he blazed, "is not Hugh Stiles."

Harry had started uncontrollably as she rose, for he had had no intimation of the lawyer's intention, and a flash darkened his cheek at the cool touch of the flower. But this faded to a settled pallor as under Forder's grave questioning she told in a voice as clear as a child's, yet with a woman's emotion struggling through it, the story of her degraded warning. While she spoke pulsed and shame traveled through his every vein, for, though technically she had not brought herself into the perjury purview of the law, she was laying bare the secret of her own heart, which now he would have covered at any cost.

"That is all, your honor," said Forder when Jensen had finished her story. "Do you wish to cross-examine?" asked the judge perfunctorily.

The prosecutor looked at her in instant. He saw the faintness in her eyes, the twitching of the gloved hand on the rail. "By no means," he said courteously and turned to his papers.

At the same moment as Jensen stepped into the open aisle the ironic chance treated the spellbound audience to a novel sensation. Every electric light suddenly went out, and darkness swooped upon the town and the courtroom. Hubbub arose—people stood up in their places.

The judge's gavel pounded viciously, and his stentorian voice bellowed for order.

"Keep your seats, everybody!" he commanded. "Mr. Clerk, get some candles. This court is not yet adjourned."

As the pall of darkness fell upon the courtroom it brought to Jensen a sense of premonition as though the incident prefigured the gloomy end. She turned sick and stumbled down the aisle, feeling that she must reach the outer air.

In the room Jensen had left the turmoil was shimmering down. Here and there a match was struck and showed a circle of brightness. The glimmer of one of them lit the countenance of a man who had brushed her sleeve as he entered. It was Hallelujah Jones.

"Wait, wait!" he cried. "I have evidence to give!" He pointed excitedly toward Harry. "This man is not what you think. He is not!"

The judge's gavel thumped upon the wood. "Hush, hush you," he roared, "break in upon the deliberations of this court? I fine you $20 for contempt."

Forder had leaped to his feet. What could this man know? He took a bill from his pocket and clapped it down on the clerk's desk.

"I beg to purge him of contempt," he said, "and call him as a witness."

Hallelujah Jones snatched the Bible from the clerk's hands and kissed it. Knowledge was burning his tongue. The jury were leaning forward in their seats.

"Have you ever seen the prisoner before?" asked Forder.

"Yes."

"When?"

"When he was a minister of the gospel."

Forder stared. The judge frowned. The jury looked at one another, and a laugh ran round the hushed room.

The minister kindled the evangelist's distempered passion. Sudden anger flamed in him. He leaned forward and shook his hand vehemently at the table where Harry sat, his face as colorless as the flower he wore.

"That man's name," he blazed, "is not Hugh Stiles. It is a clerk he has chosen to cover his shame. He is the Rev. Henry Sanderson of Anston."

Harry's pulses had leaped with excitement when the street preacher's first exclamation startled the courtroom; now they were beating as though they must burst. Through the stir about him he heard the crisp voice of the district attorney.

"I ask your honor's permission before this extraordinary witness is examined further," he said caustically. "To read an item printed here which has a bearing upon the testimony." He held to his hand a newspaper which earlier in the afternoon, with cynical disregard of Forder's tactics, he had been casually perusing.

E-M-F 30

THE RIPEST PRODUCT OF THE RIPEST EX-PERIENCE IN AUTOMOBILE MANUFACTURING

IF YOU ARE ONE OF THOSE who have looked upon the E-M-F "30" as a new and untried product; if you have listened to the arguments of envious competitors who would have you believe that this car is still to be proven—LET US CORRECT YOU; let us show you wherein and why the E-M-F "30" is actually the oldest car that was exhibited in the Coliseum show—the latest model—the 1900 product of an organization of automobile designers and builders who have lived through and acquired all the experience there has been during the last eleven years—in other words since the industry began.

IT IS NO EXAGGERATION TO SAY that this car is the ripest product of the ripest experience and the brightest brains ever collected together in one organization. This fact is freely conceded by the big men in the trade—and the little minds admit it between the lines, however unwittingly.

"THE ALL-STAR CAST"—You've heard that expression frequently of late. Ask anyone to what firm it applies and he will unhesitatingly reply, "The Everitt-Motzger-Flanders Company."

NEVER WAS A TITLE MORE APT. From the first rough sketch, through every operation to the finished car, the E-M-F "30" passes through the hands of experts of national reputation—each a recognized specialist in his particular branch of automobile building.

ATTENTION TO MINOR DETAILS, as well as to the more important features of design and construction—it is in this that the E-M-F "30" car excels; it is in this that it acknowledges no superior at any price—no equal in its own class.

DO YOU REMEMBER what they were all saying a few months ago? No? Then let us repeat it—and let them swallow it as best they may. "The car cannot make good the tremendous claims made for it." "A car on paper is all right, but wait till the actual car appears and then see!"—these are fair samples of the unanswerable arguments made by impotent competitors.

WELL, WHAT DO THEY SAY NOW? Silence, deep and eloquent. 500 of these cars are on the roads today. Does any other dare to try conclusions with this car in any kind of demonstration—speed, hill climbing, slow driving on high gear and magneto? Not one.

SURELY NEVER WAS GREATER TRIUMPH achieved by any car. It has set a pace for the industry—a pace in quality and a pace in price; for, after a demonstration in this wonderful performer: after the closest examination of the mechanics of it—the quality of materials and workmanship, our rivals find it impossible to convince intelligent buyers that any other car is the equal of this at anywhere near the price.

"WHEN WE GET THROUGH THEY CAN HAVE WHAT'S LEFT," advertises one of our enthusiastic eastern dealers, and that's about the situation everywhere. No argument of mere words has been sufficient to turn a buyer away from the E-M-F "30."

BY THE WAY: DON'T LET THEM FOOL YOU. We learn that agents for other cars, in desperate attempts to stem the tide of E-M-F enthusiasm, are warning buyers that they will be unable to get these cars in reasonable time. Don't let that worry you. We will tell you just how many cars we have been promised by the factory and just when we can make deliveries.

THE FACTORY OUTPUT IS SOLD—could have been oversold many times had they been willing to promise dealers more cars than they knew they could deliver this season.

BUT WE CAN TELL YOU to a day when we can deliver an E-M-F "30" car. Specifications run from March to July. We have dates between that we can give you. Come in and we'll tell you just what you can expect—and then you can depend on it absolutely.

DID IT EVER OCCUR TO YOU that they must—absolutely must—turn the cars out at the rate of 12,000 a year in order to sell them at the price they do? The margin on each is so small that, on an output such as our competitors produce, the "overhead" expense would run up to such figures that it would break them—the mightiest millionaires in Michigan are back of them.

YOU NEED NOT WORRY lest they fail to produce them and make prompt deliveries. That is their worry—they must deliver the cars or they can't stay in business. And the capitalists who have financed this big concern knew what they were doing—knew the ability of this organization—before they made the promise.

EVERY PART OF THE E-M-F "30" CAR IS MADE IN THEIR OWN FACTORIES. Every part, remember. This is not an assembled car in any sense of the term. Assembled cars cannot compete with this highly specialized, highly efficient product. We can sell the car for less than others can make it—when they have to have the parts made on contract here and there and everywhere.

LET US GIVE YOU A LITTLE BOOKLET entitled "A Talk With Flanders" in which we tell you inside facts that appeal to your own reason and judgment and show you how and why it is possible to build a better car for $1,250 than can be sold for $2,500.

SAYS THE NEW YORK TIMES EDITORIAL: "The statement sounds ridiculous at first; but a careful perusal of this little brochure not only convinces you of the truth of the statement but enlightens you on manufacturing problems and principles in a way that is most entertaining and valuable."

CALL AT THE GARAGE and ask for one of these "Talks With Flanders." Then examine that clean-cut chassis—not a polished or a nickel-plated affair, but just a standard chassis, painted and finished exactly as you get it when you buy an E-M-F "30." It is the cleanest job of designing, the most practical, businesslike example of chassis construction—you'll say so after you've looked it over.

THEN ARRANGE FOR A DEMONSTRATION—right then if you live out of town.

1,000 DEALERS HANDLE E-M-F "30" CARS—it is represented in every city and town and hamlet in the United States. This fact alone testifies to the tremendous popularity of this car—to the confidence the trade imposes in the men who make it.
